

Currency

The official currency in Serbia is the Serbian Dinar -. The exchange rate is around 60 dinars for 1 dollar. One dinar contains 100 paras (a para to a dinar is like a cent to a dollar)

Unlike the dollar bills, which are all same in size regardless of their value, Serbian dinar bills differ in size - the greater the value of the bill, the greater its size.

The Serbian currency comes in the following denominations:

- Bills: 10, 20, 50, 100, 200, 500, 1000 and 5000 dinars
- Coins: 50 paras, 1 dinar, 2 dinars, 5 dinars, 10 dinars, and 20 dinars

10 dinar bill features a portrait of Vuk Stefanovic Karadzic, a Serbian linguist, major reformer of the Serbian language and the creator of contemporary Serbian alphabet

20 dinar bill features a portrait of Petar Petrovic Njegoš, a statesman and a poet, and bishop of the Serbian Orthodox Church

50 dinar bill features a portrait of Stevan Stojanovic Mokranjac, one of the most famous Serbian composers and music educators of the 19th century

100 dinar bill features a portrait of Nikola Tesla, prominent scientist and inventor in the field of electric energy, who worked and died in the US

200 dinar bill features a portrait of Nadežda Petrovic, the most important Serbian female painter from the late 19th and early 20th century

500 dinar bill contains a portrait of Jovan Cvijic, a famous Serbian geographer and a founder of Serbian Geographic Society

1000 dinar bill holds a portrait of Đorđe Vajfert, the first Governor of the Serbian National Bank, an industrialist and a beer brewer

5000 dinar bill features a portrait of Slobodan Jovanovic, a jurist and historian, Prime Minister of the Yugoslav government in exile during World War II